CLAIMS 1-10 ARE PENDING

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The claims are an abstract conceptual method for carrying out a mathematical calculation, as opposed, for instance to a computer-implemented method.

2. Claims 6-10 are allowed.

The prior art of record teaches computations and re-computations that are both additive and non-additive in a variety of settings. The utility of distinguishing additive from non-additive measures can be seen from a simple example:

Suppose that an accounting computation takes place over two data sets, one in which the data is arranged at year and month levels, the other in which it is arranged at month and week levels. These measures may be combined in the month dimension. So long as there is no overlap in time, the results of the component computations are additive, but if they act in concert on data taken from the same month, the results cannot be added together; the aggregate measure is not additive.

While this is clear in principle, the prior art of record does not anticipate nor suggest the claims as written.
